The committee was welcomed by Mayor Whitehead, who extended the freedom of the city, saying: "We are indeed a reunited people, and henceforth should be friends and countrymen and brothers." Capt Hodge in his address on delivering the banner said: "Be the names of demagogues and malcontents of either section what they may we understand each other and defy their efforts to sever us." Will of T. Kirby admitted to Probate.

CINCINNATI, Jan 18.—The will of the late Timothy Kirby was admitted to probate to-day. After an examination of all the witnesses to the signature, Judge Watson said he regarded the probate as being ex parte and purely formal, and the parties interested could contest it in the ordinary way. Pending, Don Piatt, and Byron Kirby, three of the executors named in the will, declined to act as executors under it, and Clinton Kirby, the fourth executor, consented. As Mr Kirby in the will devised a contest, it is thought probable that none will be made, thus leaving the illegitimate children on the footing placed by Mr Kirby.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Wood's Resolution of Inquiry.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The Times Washington special says Fernando Wood astonished the House yesterday by the introduction of a resolution which calls for information as to officers of the United States army holding positions civil and diplomatic, whether they are legally eligible and have complied with the laws concerning civil offices and appointments. This clause is supposed to refer to General Adam Badeau, consul at London; General [illegible], formerly at Madrid; Gen. Meigs, who is traveling as a military observer or something of the sort, in Europe at government expense. Information is also asked concerning officers who have been detailed from regiments to take positions about the person of the President, the terms of the resolution being everything to indicate Babcock without naming him. When pressed, the measure will involve an examination in the various offices filled by Babcock. In addition to his rank of colonel of Engineers by the terms of the resolution, most of the military assignments during the past six or eight years will come under investigation, and the shocking transactions of 1870 and other careers record will be thoroughly ventilated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The House sub committee on Indian affairs commenced its investigations to-day into the manner of letting Indian contracts. They examined Mr. Kurtz of Pennsylvania, who testified that he bid from 25 to 50 per cent. less for supplying various articles for the Santee Sioux than others to whom the contracts were awarded. The Indian Bureau will be called on for explanations, as the committee seem determined to thoroughly investigate this entire subject.

The House committee on naval affairs to-day authorized the chairman to appoint a sub committee to investigate the affairs of the Navy Department under the provisions of Morrison's resolution from committee on ways and means.

Bills Introduced.

WASHINGTON, Jan 17.—In the House Holman moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution relating to the repeal of the specie resumption act passed at last session and instructing the committee on banking and currency to report [illegible]. The rules were not suspended; yeas [illegible].

[illegible] a bill to amend the laws relating to legal tender silver coin, was referred to the [illegible].

[illegible] bill to authorize the city and county of San Francisco to use the Presidio reservation as a park and highway was referred to the committee on military affairs.

In the Senate, Mitchell introduced a bill to establish a land office in Southern Utah to be known as the Beaver District, referred to committee on public lands.

He also introduced a bill in relation to lands heretofore granted to railroad companies, referred to committee on public lands.

Sargent's Presidio park bill allows the city of San Francisco to use the Presidio reservation as a park and highway on the following conditions: The United States to retain the fee of the land and all its rights of way, reserving also 100 acres about Fort Point, 200 including the Presidio, and such other portions as may be hereafter selected for public works and buildings. The government may resume possession in time of public danger without liability for damage. The city shall have the first right to purchase if the Federal Government at any time desires to sell the reservation as a whole.

Had California been reached in the House call of States, Piper would have introduced a duplicate of this and also of the Senate Silver Coinage bill.

Luttrell was also ready to introduce a bill to prohibit the naturalization of Chinese and Mongolians.

WASHINGTON, Jan 18.—The bill introduced by Luttrell to-day amendatory of the Texas Pacific railroad act differs from Huntington's bill in the following respects: The preamble is omitted. The prohibition of discrimination of one company against the other is supplemented by prohibitory discriminations against any persons or locality. A new section is added providing for the appointment of three commissioners—one each by the Governors of New York, Missouri and California, who shall prescribe rates for freights and fares, limiting them to a reasonable percentage of returns on the actual cost and running expenses, and providing also that neither line shall ever be leased to any Railroad Co. or controlled in the interest of any other line.

Wigginton's bill, also introduced by Senator Booth, provides that pre-emption claims shall not be invalidated by the execution of a mortgage upon the possessory rights.

Lane's bill proposes appropriations of $25 000 and $50 000 respectively for Yamhill and Willamette rivers. His bill respecting the Klamath Indian reservation provides for the issue of lieu land scrip to owners of lands thus occupied by the government which were granted to aid in the construction of the military wagon road.

Wigginton presented the petitions of hundreds of citizens of his district asking aid for the Texas Pacific railroad. Also numerously signed petitions for the restoration to the public domain of lands on the route abandoned by the Southern Pacific Co.

In the Senate to-day Mitchell, of Oregon, from the committee on railroads, reported without amendment the Senate bill extending the time for the completion of the Oregon Central Railroad and telegraph line from Portland to Astoria and McMinnville in the State of Oregon. The bill was placed on the calendar.

Appointment Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan 18.—The Senate has confirmed the nomination of Geo S Bangs Assistant Treasurer of the United States at Chicago.

Salaries of Consuls to be Reduced.

WASHINGTON, Jan 18.—The House committee on appropriations will probably decide to report in favor of the reduction of salaries of consuls at least 10 per cent throughout the world and will abolish at least thirty consulates now requiring [illegible].

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan 18.—The chair laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior enclosing a report from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs in answer to a resolution of the Senate, of the 11th inst, in regard to the books kept by the Indian agents in compliance with section 10 of the Indian Appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1876. Ordered printed.

Thurman presented the credentials of Eustis claiming a seat as Senator from Louisiana. The document consisted of an extract of the Louisiana Legislature proceedings. Before the reading was finished Conkling inquired who certified to these papers.

Thurman replied the papers were voluminous and it was not necessary to read them; they were certified to by the Speaker and clerk of the Louisiana House of Representatives and the Senator who presided at the joint meeting.

Conkling said the act of Congress states that the credentials of any one claiming a seat in this body must be certified by the governor of the State. He argued that the papers just presented in the Senate did not present a prima facie case, not being credentials authorized by the statute. These credentials he submitted ought not to be read as such in the Senate.

Morton said he was not in the Senate when the papers purporting to be the credentials of Eustis were read. He asked that the matter be laid over until to-morrow morning.

Thurman said these papers showed the title of Eustis to a seat. He did not ask to have him sworn on them, but only asked to have the case referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

Conkling argued that the papers presented were irregular and were papers upon which the Senate could not act.

Thurman denied that the papers were irregular unless it was on account of the absence of the governor's certificate, and that he submitted was not an irregularity. The act of Congress had been strictly complied with in the election of Eustis. The papers showed that the majority of the aggregate number of members of the two houses were present, also that a majority of these members voted. The whole question before the Senate would turn on the fact as to whether or not a vacancy existed in Louisiana in the senatorship. If the Senate should decide Pinchback was entitled to a seat there would be an end to these papers, but on the other hand if the Senate should decide Pinchback was not entitled to the seat the claim of Eustis must be considered.

Sherman suggested that the papers be printed and put on record and that the matter be laid over until to-morrow, so that the Senate could go on with the morning business now. The suggestion was agreed to and it was ordered that the papers be printed and laid over until to-morrow.

The chair laid before the Senate the memorial of the Democratic conservative convention of Louisiana held Jan 6, 1876 concerning the election in the State of Louisiana; referred.

The following bills were introduced and referred:

By Dorsey, a resolution instructing the committee on post offices and post roads to inquire and report whether the restoration of the franking privilege would increase the cost of the mail service, and if it is expedient to restore the same; agreed to.

Edmunds submitted a resolution requesting the President to communicate to the Senate copies of any correspondence held under authority with other governments with regard to the Centennial.

Cragin called up the Senate bill to secure the attendance and payment of witnesses before military courts and submitted an amendment giving to every court martial the same power to punish any witness for refusing to testify as that now held by the circuit courts of the United States, provided that the action of such court martial shall be subject to revision, on writ of habeas corpus by any circuit or district court of the United States.

The morning hour having expired the Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution submitted by Davis on Wednesday to appoint a special committee to investigate the books and accounts of the treasury department.

Boutwell said, when he addressed the Senate on Thursday last he stated the general principle by which he supposed a full explanation of the argument of the Senator from West Virginia (Davis) could be given. He (Boutwell) had no disposition to oppose the examination. He was in favor of such an examination, by either a special committee or one of the standing committees of the Senate. There was not the least foundation for the suggestion that the books of the department had been changed, and if the Hon Senator had taken pains to examine the process of keeping accounts in the department, he would have seen that it would have been so difficult to change the records after they had been made that it might be said to be an impossibility. He (Boutwell) found the details in figures were so voluminous that it would not be expedient to publish them to the extent required and they would furnish upon the whole very little information.

At 4:15 the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

House.

Knott from the judiciary committee reported a proposed amendment to the constitution as follows: No person who has held or may hereafter hold the office of President shall ever again be eligible to said office. [illegible] was made the special order for Tuesday next.

Frye on behalf of a minority of the committee gave notice he would offer a substitute.

Ashe of North Carolina from the same committee, gave notice of a bill to amend the revised statutes in relation to naturalization so that a declaration of intent to become a citizen of the United States may be made before a clerk of court, and all such declarations heretofore made are declared legal and valid. He explained that the object of the bill was simply to restore the law to what it had been before the printing of the revised statutes in which the word clerk had been accidentally omitted.

[illegible]

By Hunter, to fix a legal rate of interest on national money throughout the United States at a rate [illegible].

By Baker, fixing the pay of members of Congress at $3600 and no allowances.

By Anderson, fixing the pay of members of Congress at $4 000 with mileage at 10 cents a mile.

By Piper of California authorizing the city and county of San Francisco to use a portion of Presidio reservation as a park and highway. Also to amend the laws relating to legal tender in silver coin.

By Luttrell to prevent the naturalization of Chinese Mongolians; also amendatory of the Texas Pacific railroad act.

By Wigginton relating to pre-emption claims; also for relief of settlers on certain lands in California.

By Lane of Oregon for the improvement of the Yamhill and Willamette rivers; also to adjust the claims of owners of lands within the Klamath Indian reservation.

By Bennett of Idaho for the improvement of Snake river; also for the construction of military and post roads in Idaho; also for capitol buildings in Boise City, Idaho.

By House of Tennessee to restore to the pension rolls the names of pensioners which were stricken off for disloyalty.

By Cannon of Illinois providing a penalty for mailing obscene matter and prohibiting lottery circulars from passing through the mails.

By Hartzell for the payment of a portion of the import duties in legal tender notes.

By Franklin—For a branch mint at Kansas City.

By Wilshire—To establish the judicial district of Oklahoma.

By Olliver—To reduce the interest bearing public debt and to provide a uniform currency and limit the amount thereof and make it equal in value to specie; also to invite a joint convention of all civilized nations for the purpose of establishing a uniform system of weights, measures and coinage throughout the civilized world.

The House then at three o'clock went into committee of the whole on the state of the Union, Wood in the chair, on the Centennial appropriation bill and was addressed by Hopkins, chairman of the select committee, who argued that the national honor was involved in the success of the exhibition and that there could be no extremity of financial distress that ought to cause an American Congress to falter in voting an appropriation to preserve the good name of the government, as national unity was valueless without national honor. Referring to the national advantages of the celebration he said that one of these would be to show that Southern people were neither Dukes of Alva nor Spanish Inquisitors but were men and brethren. The spirit of '76 would breathe its influence on the people, and under that influence all animosities and all angry memories would fade away. The passage of the pending bill by the aid of those the sincerity of whose patriotism had been unjustly questioned would conduce to that consummation devoutly to be wished.

Weddell said if it was supposed that the irritating discussion of last week would have driven southern men away from the support of this measure he sincerely trusted that the result of the vote would only add another illustration to the many already given of how utterly impossible it is for some people to understand and appreciate the spirit that animates other people. He and his associates acquitted their Northern brethren of all responsibility for that discussion. They had understood fully, for it was transparent, the motive which underlaid the introduction of that subject and attaching to that motive its exact value they simply looked down upon and passed by the whole subject. They wished the disturbers of the public peace to understand that notwithstanding the spirit exhibited they were too good patriots and too sincere men to allow that spirit either to control them or to serve as an example for them. They wished to maintain the honor and character of the American Union and they would do so if they were allowed. One element in the House had not yet been heard from in that discussion, the element of Southern soldiers in the late war of whom he was one. They had sat in silence and taken the fire which the gentleman from Maine (Blaine) had opened on them with no other feeling than that of gratitude of having escaped from so terrible an enemy as he (Blaine) must have been during the battles of the late war. If now when that gentleman's hair was silvering and his natural force perceptibly abating he could develop such intensity of spirit how must his plume have waved in the forefront of the conflict which had occurred at a time when he (Blaine) was young and strong and healthy. That element had not yet spoken. It could not be goaded into discussion; on the contrary it had exalted a spirit which he believed the American people would not soon forget. It met a storm of hate and persecution as the swan meets the billows with a breast of down. He knew some gentlemen who had been engaged in the same cause with him who had not intended to vote for this measure before that discussion but now intended to support it so as to set an example of patriotism. If there were any of them who still opposed this he appealed to them to unite with him in doing an act which could only promote the honor and advance the interests of the country, and the peace and happiness of the people.

Chealey offered an amendment that entrance to the Centennial grounds and buildings shall be free on the Fourth of July and on Thursday of each week.

Willis opposed the bill as unconstitutional and denied that the faith of the government was pledged in the matter.

The House at 4 P M adjourned.

Results of the Election in France.

PARIS, Jan 18.—La Patrie gives the following as the general result of the elections for Senatorial delegates, professedly from an official source. Of 300 communes [illegible] have returned Conservative delegates. The extreme Radicals have been victorious in very few instances. The successful candidates are Bonapartists, Orleanists and Moderate Republicans. The Bonapartists preponderate in 17 departments.

LONDON, Jan 18.—The Times Paris special says: Among the Conservative delegates elected in those departments from which results have so far been made known the Legitimists and Orleanists are comparatively few in number. The provincial element consists of pronounced Bonapartists. If the returns already at hand could be taken as a criterion of the final result they would give us a Senate composed of 135 Republicans, including life Senators already elected by the Assembly, 100 militant Bonapartists and 70 belonging to various parties, including patient Bonapartists.

PARIS, Jan 18.—The Conservatives have elected majorities of senatorial delegates in the departments of the Loire, Marne et Loire Inferieure, Indre and Gironde.

PARIS, Jan 18.—Sufficient returns have been received to show the result of the elections for Senatorial delegates in fifty departments. Of these the Conservatives elected 46, the opposition 1 and 10 are doubtful. The Conservative majority in the Vosges is 71, in Gironde 50, and in Puy De Dome and Charente respectively the Conservatives have a two third majority. The departments of Deux Sevres, Haute Saone, Vaucluse and Ardeche have also elected Conservative majorities. The Moniteur states that pronounced Bonapartists only preponderate among delegates selected in Correze, [illegible] Charente, Dordogne, Basses Pyrenees and Pas De Calais. The Conservative majority comprises generally those who wish for the practical application of the new constitution. The Bonapartist journals however claim numerous successes. The Duc De Cazes will contest the election for deputy in the eighth arrondissement of Paris. He has issued an address [illegible] President MacMahon's manifesto. He says he desires only such modifications of the constitution as sincere and patient trial may show to be necessary and declares we shall pursue the work to which we are devoted, namely the maintenance of the peace of France [illegible] the sentiments of the rest of Europe.

The Situation in the Turkish Provinces.

LONDON, Jan 18.—The Times this morning published a letter from Vienna, giving the following account of the situation in the Turkish provinces: Partly from a sincere wish to end the insurrection and partly from an anxiety to escape intervention the Sublime Porte is making great efforts to achieve pacification unaided. The new Turkish commander Mukhtar Pasha and the new Governor Ali Pasha are to co-operate to that end, the former by military dispositions and the latter by political and diplomatic activity. The severe checks the insurgents have suffered and the large reinforcements the Turks have lately received, render offensive operations by the insurgents very improbable. Mukhtar Pasha seems likewise to have instructions not to operate against the insurgents but to gain by the occupation of the important positions and debouches of the Montenegrin frontier. The cordon [illegible] will be drawn to prevent Montenegrins from assisting the insurgents and Turkish arms will be turned against those attempting to pass the frontier. So far as munitions of war and provisions are concerned such a disposition might be effective but it is ineffective against the passage of armed individuals. The sort of truce thus established with the insurgents will be utilized by the governors summoning an assembly at Mostar to draft a report of the grievances of the country, to be sent direct to the Sultan. The Sultan will then consider all just complaints and make especial concessions to Herzegovina. While within the Villayet of Bosnia no concessions will be possible without extending them to Bosnia also, which is scarcely practicable on account of the much larger population of Mussulmans in Bosnia who are already so excited and so fanatical that there is great danger of an outbreak leading to serious excesses. In order to solve this difficulty Herzegovina will be created an independent villayet. The circumstances of the two provinces are very different, the proportion of Mohammedans to Christians in Bosnia being as 1 to 6, and in Herzegovina about as one to two. None of the powers will grudge Turkey the merit of pacifying the insurgents unaided; on the contrary all of them will be relieved from much inconvenience and anxiety. Only after the previous fruitless efforts, it is doubtful whether at this eleventh hour one is likely to be much more successful.

The News and Post condemn the cabinet's action.

Turkey Expects England to Accept.

In Turkish official circles it is expected that England will accept Andrassy's note.

England Accepts Count Andrassy's Note.

LONDON, Jan 18.—The Times states that the Cabinet yesterday resolved to give a general support to Count Andrassy's note. At the same time many questions may arise after the note shall be presented to the Porte; those points naturally await further consideration. The Times in an editorial on the decision of the Government says less than this would have been unworthy of the great country which holds the casting vote in deliberations of critical importance to the whole of Europe. The English ministers were in a position leaving them little choice. It is highly probable the Turks would refuse to be bound by the note if England rejected it. Austria and Russia could not afford to sustain such a defeat. They would have insisted on their proposals and if the Turks resisted armed intervention would have been only the first and the least of the consequences. However reluctant the cabinet might be to sanction even the most peaceful intervention it would have been foolhardy if it encouraged the Porte to give battle with powerful states.

The means of applying the provisions of the note are far more serious than its presentation. The application of reforms might lead to dangerous disputes and armed intervention. It is clear that Austria is prepared to use stronger weapons than words if necessary. England has not the same reasons as Austria for undertaking the pacification of Herzegovina. She cannot be expected to run the same risks. They might differ also both with regard to the means and the end. Therefore it was a matter of course that the British cabinet should hold itself free to differ on anything Austria may propose after the presentation of the note.

The New York Tribune says, speaking of the annexation projects:

Floating about Washington in rather a nebulous form is a scheme for taking another slice of territory from Mexico. It changes its shape from time to time, but it always has a gaseous odor of jobbery. Not long ago it was proposed to push the boundary line of Arizona and New Mexico a hundred miles or so southward. Then we were treated to a project for battering the inflated claims of Texan herdsmen and traders for a strip fifty miles wide along the right bank of the Rio Grande. Now it is the peninsula of Lower California that the annexationists are coveting.

The good sense of the American people will oppose all projects for territorial expansion southward. We swallowed as much of Mexico in 1848 as we can assimilate in the present century. The Gadsden Purchase of 1854 has not yet justified itself. To take another strip of alkali desert and Apaches for the chance of finding a few silver mines upon it would be folly. Even more absurd is the proposition to annex the right bank of the Rio Grande. The Texan ranchmen who are now harried by Mexican banditti would perhaps be benefited, but other ranchmen would push forward to the new frontier and would be much more exposed to the depredations of their lawless neighbors. We have now the natural boundary of a large navigable river. But if the plan of the Texan frontiersmen were carried out we should have to build a Chinese wall to exclude effectually the roving bands of Mexican and half breed cattle thieves. As to Lower California we doubt whether it would be wise to take it if it were offered as a gift. Not many years ago a company of Boston men, among whom was Gen Butler, sent a colony to develop the resources of that favored region. The adventurers narrowly escaped starvation and after much suffering finally turned up in San Francisco as objects of charity.

It is the part of true statesmanship to discourage all projects for acquiring new territory and to turn the energies of our people to the work of developing the vast domain we already possess. Our population is [illegible] like a flimsy garment full of holes. We must thicken the fabric and fill up the vacant spaces before we would obtain the conditions of a higher civilization.

"Snooks," said a brow beating lawyer to a witness he was trying to badger one day last week, "suppose I should tell you that I could bring a dozen men of your own town to the court room who would say they would not believe you on oath, what would you say?" And calmly the witness made his reply: "I would say you lied." A gentle smile diffused itself all over the court room like a lump of butter on a hot cake, and the unruffled witness stepped down.

Some of the new styles of overskirts are made with the back cut and worn Arab style and the effect is very stylish and quite new.

Waddell's Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 18.—It is currently reported and generally believed that a memorial has been received in this city, signed by sixty Democratic Congressmen, addressed to the Hawaiian government, threatening to vote against the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty if that government insists on the persecution of Capt Waddell of Shenandoah fame.

The Antioch Distillery.

In the case of the United States vs. the Antioch distillery, A. M. Crane, government officer, was placed on the stand to compare the government books kept at the distillery which show the daily shipments as checked by the gauger with the abstract made from steamer manifests. The comparison showed a discrepancy between the two accounts running from Aug 13 1873 to May 29, 1874, amounting to 180 pipes of liquor in favor of the distillery and a loss to the government.

In the U S District Court the crooked whisky case of the Antioch distillery is still on trial. The counsel for the defense made a motion to take up the Government books and go through them in course comparing totals with total records of shipments which, he argues, will show a perfect agreement.

Burr's Case.

Lewis I Burr, formerly Colonel in the army, but of late deputy collector of internal revenue for Tulare, Fresno and Kern counties, was brought to this city last night by U S Deputy Marshal Ackerman and held in custody on a charge of compounding violations of the internal revenue law. Burr found in the store of Quong Yuen & Co, Bakersfield, a number of boxes of cigars unstamped. He seized the whole establishment and then offered the release of it on payment of $1,000. The firm paid $250 cash and gave their note for $750, which he afterwards returned on the payment of an additional $250. Burr's bail is $5,000, pending the examination. He alleges ignorance of the law and intention to turn over the money received to the government.

The Civil Rights Case.

The civil rights case of the colored citizens against Thos Maguire is on trial in the Circuit Court this morning, the suit of Wormser Bros against the Bank of California in the same court being laid over for the present.

In the civil rights case before the U.S. Circuit Court to-day, Green, the complainant, swore positively that the doorkeeper told him he was refused admission to the dress circle, by Maguire's order, on account of his color. Daniel I Butts and J H Whitney, colored, testified to the same effect as did others.

Rames Rigeley, ticket taker, said he had received no instructions from Maguire not to admit colored people. R. B. Lewis, colored, testified that he was present when Green applied for admission; the doorkeeper said at first he was instructed by Mr Maguire not to allow colored persons to enter, and afterwards he said the ticket was not good for that evening, that it was for another evening. This afternoon the counsel on both sides addressed the jury and were given until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning to look up their authorities.

A Cowardly Assault.

SACRAMENTO, Jan 18.—A few seconds after the Senate adjourned to-day there was suddenly a great shout and disturbance raised. The reporter of the San Francisco Chronicle was sitting, writing quietly at his desk, when Wilcox, the Mariposa blacksmith, came up behind him and struck him violently over the head with a thick cane, breaking the cane in two. The blood gushed down from the neck of Summers, the reporter, and all was confusion. Pistols were then drawn by both parties, but before any firing could take place several Senators interfered. Summers was immediately taken into the sergeant-at-arms room where his wounds, which do not seem to be of a serious character, were dressed. Wilcox left the chamber but up to this writing has not been arrested. The assault arose from some articles in the Chronicle reflecting on Wilcox.

Chamber of Commerce.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 18.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon, a resolution was presented urgently requesting the Senators and Representatives in Congress to endeavor to secure the passage of the bill which should secure the old Marine hospital to be used hereafter as a sailors' home, and unanimously approved.

An endeavor to secure from the chamber an indorsement of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty was not perfectly successful. Mr Babcock moved its indefinite postponement. I. W. Raymond thought it should receive more respectful treatment. Its being disposed of so summarily was in the nature of insult. Mr Coleman moved the matter be referred to a special committee of five. The motion prevailed. The committee was appointed with instructions to report within three days. This motion was afterwards reconsidered and next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock was fixed for the meeting to discuss the question in a general way.

After some further business of less general importance the meeting adjourned.

Eckstein, alleged Poll-tax Forger, Discharged.

This morning Delos Lake, special counsel for the city in the poll tax forgery cases, appeared in the municipal court and moved that the indictments against Alfred Eckstein, one of the alleged forgers, be finally dismissed. The court assented to the motion and Eckstein's bonds were exonerated.

Railway Mass Meeting.

LOS ANGELES, Jan 18.—A mass meeting has been called for the 20th inst. to hear the report of the committee appointed on the 27th of December to confer with Senator Jones and the citizens of Salt Lake upon the extension of the Los Angeles and Independence railroad to Salt Lake.

OREGON.

Wheat in Albany was yesterday quoted at 85 cents per bushel—an advance since last week.

Mr W. H. Watkinds, superintendent of the penitentiary, is quite sick, and is confined to his room.

The hosiery mills at Jefferson have been leased by James Dickenson, who will start them up at once.

The newly elected city marshal of Albany has started in to enforce the Sunday law, and last Sunday all the saloons were closed.

The records and papers of the office of the late Oregon Indian superintendency have been boxed up and sent to Washington and the seekers for a fat "posish" will know that one no more forever. So mote it be.

MORALITY IN SCHOOLS.

Good morals are the common stock of all sects and the basis of toleration. Perhaps this truth has not always been sufficiently remembered during the discussions now so warm and frequent respecting religion in schools. It may simplify matters somewhat if we consider that whether the Bible is to be excluded from schools or not it is quite impossible to keep out of them a considerable part of what the Bible teaches. Those who in the ardor of controversy suffer themselves to talk of "godless schools" need possibly to be reminded how much, at least of the morality of the Bible, is necessarily included in any scheme of education worthy of the name.

Though intellectual culture is not necessarily religious, it clearly does not tend in the opposite direction. An ignorant man is more likely to be wicked, because he commands fewer conditions of honest success; for it is the useless member of society who cannot do what there is a demand for his doing, who falls into evil ways and finishes with the scaffold or the prison. It is true that men who have been taught to read may commit murder and that only a man who knows how to write can commit forgery, but it is equally true that one who reads will be more likely to understand the wickedness of murder, and that one who writes will probably have other accomplishments which should save him from the temptation of actual want. The influence of intelligence and acquirement is always toward morality, and our whole public school system is based upon a recognition of this truth. If it were otherwise it would be a despotical absurdity to compel the citizen to send his child to school, and a misappropriation of the public funds to build school houses and hire teachers at all.

The controversy which is at present agitating the country is needlessly embittered by a confusion of morals and religion. Primarily, the business of a school is to cultivate the intellect and incidentally the heart, while it undertakes to furnish the child with the tools by the use of which the future man can be supported. If we add to this the means of harmless and refined gratification, we have the whole net purport and upshot of public education. Infinitely more than this, the man, as life advances, will need; but this is what the State undertakes to supply. There remain the education of the eternal soul, the preparation for a higher and purely spiritual life, the development of a devout submission to the will of God, the comprehension of our utter helplessness without His support and guidance, the feeling of inexpressible gratitude for all His mercies, and the confession that in Him we live and move and have our being. These are attainments apart from the learning of books. These are acquisitions only to be secured by painful experiences and by honest self-examination. Many men have well nigh passed through the valley of the shadow of death before there came to them assurances of light and safety. Doubtless to such the Bible has been an inexpressible support and comfort. But it is not of its value in such mortal emergency that President and press are talking. It is as a code of morals that it must be politically discussed. Whatever adjustment may be made of present difficulties the Bible will remain. Read in the schools or not, it will continue to exercise its influence upon the mind and heart and spirit of mankind, as it continued to do in the Puritan colony when it was thought inexpedient to read it in the churches. Its promises, warnings, encouragements are to the necessities of the race and can never be obliterated. Whatever may be the decision of the vexed question, there is little need of alarm. The book has a vitality independent of human law, and will be read by most men, while men read at all.—N Y Tribune.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Gov Fish sustains the position of Premier, or head of the Cabinet, at an expenditure of at least $10,000 a year above his salary. He is of orthodox Knickerbocker stock, and the services of his father, Col Nicolas Fish, gave him a hereditary right to belong to the Society of the Cincinnati, over the central organization of which he presides as captain-general. On the door of his carriage, on his silver, and on his dainty note paper, are his family crests—a dolphin and a sea griffin—with the motto Deus Dabit. He is a rather large, British looking man, with leg-of-mutton side whiskers, a stout nose, and a pleasant expression of countenance, especially when he is chuckling over his success in humbugging some verdant news gatherer on diplomatic matters. Mrs Fish is a matronly looking person, who wears her gray hair in the old fashioned way, with side curls, and performs the social duties exacted of her with wonderful industry, although there is often a shade of weariness around her light gray eyes. One of her daughters married Sidney Webster when he was Frank Pierce's private secretary; he is now a successful practitioner of law in New York. Another daughter married Major Benjamin, of the army, who last year got anchored for life in the peaceful and pleasant duties of the Adjutant General's Department. Miss Edith remains, a sylph-like, haughty dark-eyed girl, who should marry a Peer of Great Britain or a German Prince, and who would grace any Court. There are also sons,—one of them, Nicolas Fish, is now United States secretary of legation at Berlin, and, when the father was governor of the State of New York, an artist painted them all, then children, in a fancy group. When the picture was exhibited, an envious but witty artist said sarcastically "Oh! this is a picture of sardines,—little fishes preserved in oil!" It is the especial social duty of Secretary Fish to entertain the foreign diplomats here, to settle their little disputes on questions of etiquette, and to make them reasonably happy. This week he dined and wined them, and although his dining room in the Morgan House is of goodly size, he was forced to make a three days' job of it. So, on Monday, he had the envoys extraordinary; on Tuesday, the ministers resident, and, on Wednesday, the charges d'affaires, with a few personal friends to fill up the gaps. Now the Senate and House foreign committees must next be entertained at dinner and then the leading members of other houses will expect to put their congressional legs under the Fishes' mahogany. Then Mrs and Miss Fish must go the grand rounds to leave their cards on the wives and daughters of Senators and Representatives, and must be "at home" every Wednesday to receive visits from them, and the rest of "society" in return. Verily the Department of State, although an honorable "posish," costs money, hospitality and hard work.

"COMPOSITE" VESSELS FOR THE COAST SURVEY.—There was recently launched at Baltimore, for the United States Coast Survey, a composite vessel—that is, a vessel built partly of iron and partly of wood. It appears that this vessel was built upon recommendation of Captain Patterson of the Coast Survey, whose views on the subject are of interest in adding to our knowledge of the important questions affecting the ship building trade. He says that experience has shown composite vessels to be more economical and more durable than vessels built either entirely of iron or entirely of wood, and this is more especially the case in our Southern waters. In the composite built the frame and beams are of iron and the planking of wood. The waters of the Southern coast are found to be so very salt that iron built vessels [illegible]. Five or six years ago two small composite vessels were built for the coast survey in Baltimore; one of these, the Bibb, was in the terrible cyclone which recently destroyed Indianola. She was subject to its full severity for nearly [illegible] hours but passed through it unscathed. In the period of nearly six years that they have been afloat the repairs to these two schooners have not exceeded $800. Subsequently another composite schooner, of 125 tons, was built and afterward a composite steamer of 200 tons. Captain Patterson thinks that this class of vessels will in time be generally used, on account of their much greater durability than wooden vessels, which much more than balances the somewhat heavier first cost.—Baltimore Sun.

THE TERRITORIES.

A gallon of the "crooked" is considered a fair daily quantity for a moderate drinker in Montana, in the winter season.

Montana, standing fifth in point of population of the Territories, is third on the amount of internal revenue collected and paid into the Treasury of the United States.

Morris Block, a merchant at a little town in Montana, called Corvallis, was shot and fatally wounded on Dec. 22d, by Nat G[illegible], to whom he had presented a bill for goods.

A Cheyenne paper states that ten thousand people have gone to the Black Hills during the past three months. They came from Idaho, Montana, California and all parts of the country.

A Washington dispatch says that the delegates from the different Territories will endeavor this session to amend the general laws relating to their government, so as to give the principal offices now in the gift of the President, elective.

The Henrietta and Maggie mines in [illegible] district, Idaho, are reported as turning out splendidly. New arrivals of miners are noted every day and house rents are very high. A small house rents for $100 a month. It is thought the district will have a population of over 1,000 the coming summer.

INDIAN WRESTLERS.

In his book, "India and Her Princes," Rousselet thus describes a contest between wrestlers at the court of Guicowar of Baroda, who was lately tried for the murder of the British Resident, and acquitted:

Here the combatants, almost naked, adorned with crowns and garlands, tear each other with claws of horn. These claws, formerly of steel, and caused certain death to one or the other of the combatants; but they have been abolished as too barbarous for modern times. Those now in use are, as I have said, of horn, and are fixed on the closed fist. I was only once present at a combat of this kind, for my heart was so moved by the horrible spectacle that I refused ever to go again. The wrestlers, intoxicated with bang, a liquid opium mixed with an infusion of hemp,—sing as they rush upon one another; their faces and heads are soon covered with blood, and their frenzy knows no bounds. The King, with wild eyes and the veins of his neck swollen, surveys the scene with such passionate excitement that he cannot remain quiet, but imitates by gesture the movement of the wrestlers. The arena is covered with blood, the defeated combatant is carried off, sometimes in a dying condition, and the conqueror, the skin of his forehead hanging down in strips, prostrates himself before the King, who places round his neck a necklace of fine pearls, and covers him with garments of great value. One episode, above all, disgusted me to such a degree that, without any heed of the effect my sudden departure might have upon the Guicowar, I at once withdrew. One of the wrestlers, whom the bang had only half intoxicated, after receiving the first few blows, made a show of wishing to escape; his antagonist threw him, and they rolled together on the ground before us. The victor, seeing the unhappy wretch defeated, turned to the king to know whether he should let the other rise; but, irritated with the spectacle, the monarch cried out "Maro! maro! Strike! strike!" and the head of the unfortunate fellow was torn without mercy. When he was taken away he had lost all consciousness. The same day the king distributed among the victorious wrestlers necklaces and money to the amount of more than £4,000.

CANARY-BIRD EDUCATION.—A gentleman named Wall, residing at Phoenixville, has several very fine canary birds which he has given much attention. One of the birds he has taught to sing "Home, Sweet Home," clearly and distinctly. His mode of instruction was as follows: He placed the canary in a cage where it could not hear the singing of other birds, suspended its cage from the ceiling, so that the bird would see its reflection in a mirror. Beneath the glass he placed a music box that was regulated to play no other tune but "Home, Sweet Home." Hearing no other sounds but this, and believing the music proceeded from the bird it saw in the mirror, the young canary soon began to catch the air, and finally accomplished what its owner had been laboring to attain, that of singing the song perfectly. Mr. Wall has been offered and refused $20 for this yellow-throated soprano.—Reading Eagle.

A European correspondent of the New York Tribune writes: "I saw the Sultan last week as he returned from the ceremony of kissing the Prophet's mantle in the Treasury. In appearance he has become considerably older within the last two years. He has good reason to look careworn, if he realizes what is happening. He rode in a carriage drawn by four fine horses and the authorities had, as is the custom, covered up the pitfalls of the pavement along his route with [illegible] and sand well watered and rolled. His Majesty enjoyed a comfortable ride over well-made roads, but after he had passed, the sand was all swept up and moved in carts for use next time, and the pitfalls returned. This incident may make one surmise if the Sultan's ministers have not likewise some device for concealing from him greater abuses than the neglected streets of Constantinople."

A FATAL MISTAKE.—Patrick Sheehan, an Irishman aged 30 who was lately admitted into the Louisville (Ky.) hospital, died on Sunday by drinking some carbolic acid which he had mistaken for whisky. A nurse had left a 4-ounce bottle of a solution of the acid standing uncorked on a table, using it as a disinfectant. The deceased, who had arisen before any of the other patients, caught a glimpse of the bottle with its pinkish-colored fluid, and supposing it to be whisky, stepped stealthily to where it stood and, without stopping to smell or taste, tipped the bottle to his mouth and swallowed about an ounce of the fiery poison before he was aware of his mistake. He cried out that he was poisoned and help came up. Although medical aid was on hand at once, the doomed man passed into a state of insensibility, and in a few minutes was dead.

IRON CLADS

It is said that the English Admiralty intend to construct a new fleet of small easily handled iron clads to take the place of the monster structures in which they formerly took such pride. This course has been decided upon, it is said, on account of the utter worthlessness and extreme unwieldiness of those great ships. The English have been unfortunate with their iron clads—the Captain went to the bottom of the Bay of Biscay, the Vanguard was sunk in the channel, and the Iron Duke came very near meeting with the same fate a short time after.

It is not easy to see what advantage these immense ships have over smaller and more easily handled ones. The powerful guns now made by Whitworth and Krupp, to say nothing of those made in our own country, are capable of penetrating any ship afloat or likely ever to be built. A small active craft, armed with one of these guns could sail around a heavier, slower ship and demolish her without difficulty. Greater celerity of movement would enable the smaller ship to choose her own position and distance and thus give her an incalculable advantage over her clumsy adversary.

It would be strange if it should turn out that Ericsson had built the model war ship at his first attempt. At all events no better or more seaworthy iron clads have yet been constructed than those modeled after the "cheese-box on a raft" as it was contemptuously called on its first appearance.

MR BLAINE AND THE THIRD TERM RESOLUTION

There has been a great deal said about Mr Blaine's alleged dodging of the vote on the third term resolution. But it seems that he did not dodge it after all. The Washington Chronicle speaking about this says: "It has been asserted that Mr Blaine fled to the cloak room when the vote was called on Mr Springer's third term resolution. He did no such thing. He sat in his seat, looked the clerk in the eye as his name was called, and refused to answer. The ex-Speaker's dignity in thus rebuking by his silence the silly attempt to make political capital, might well be imitated by other presidential aspirants. The White House cannot be captured by truckling, and Mr Blaine's position as a party leader cannot be affected by such stupid means as third term resolutions."

EX-SENATOR REVELS VS SENATOR MORTON

While Mr Morton was urging upon the President to harry the State of Mississippi with fire and sword, in the interest of the Republican party at large and of the colored people of Mississippi in particular, ex-Senator Revels, a colored Republican, wrote to the President as follows:

My people are naturally Republicans but as they grow older in freedom so do they in wisdom. A great portion of them have learned that they were being used as mere tools, and, as in the late election, not being able to correct the existing evil among themselves, they determined by casting their ballots against these unprincipled adventurers to overthrow them. My people have been told by these schemers, when men were placed upon the ticket who were notoriously corrupt and dishonest that they must vote for them; that the salvation of the party depended upon it; that the man who scratched a ticket was not a Republican. This is only one of the many means these malignant demagogues have devised to perpetuate the intellectual bondage of my people. To defeat this policy at the late election men irrespective of race or party affiliation, united and voted together against men known to be incompetent and dishonest.

MR LAMAR

The Mississippi Legislature elected yesterday Mr Lamar Senator of the United States. The Republicans refrained from voting, on the ground that the late elections in that State were vitiated and made void by fraud and violence.

The election of Mr Lamar is the best thing the party to which he belongs could do. He is, perhaps, the most able and most conservative of all the Southern men now prominent in politics. The ranks of the Democrats in the Senate will be strongly reinforced by the new Senators from Mississippi and Kentucky.

An attempt has just been made by a Pennsylvania Republican to win the honor of being the first man to nominate Blaine. This gentleman proposed that the convention, of which he was a member, should declare that Mr Blaine was their choice for the Presidency. But the other members, with exceeding prudence did not wish to commit themselves at this early period to any one. If Mr Blaine should not get the nomination it might be an awkward fact, in case another Republican should be elected, that they had been so prominently supporting Mr Blaine and it might injure their chance for official position. So the worldly wise members quietly put aside the consideration of the matter as premature.

Senator Morton's proposal to hunt for the bloody shirt in Mississippi seems to have settled two things—the election of Mr Lamar to the U S Senate and the impeachment of Gov Ames and Lieut Gov Davis.

THE CRY OF MORTON

N Y Tribune

For a very earnest, we might almost say obstinate man commend us to Senator Oliver P Morton of Indiana, leading statesman of the Republican party, and possible Republican candidate for the Presidency. Not that he has been at all dogged in maintaining any special view of the currency question. Upon that subject we freely admit he has been wonderfully [illegible] and pliable. We do not know indeed what his present views are and it would [illegible] be no guide [illegible] as to what they might [illegible]. It is perhaps safe to say that [illegible] his opinions [illegible] have certainly been elastic but whatever may have been his course upon questions of finance [illegible] the impression [illegible] that it has been vacillating and uncertain [illegible] several times [illegible] stood on his head [illegible] nothing [illegible] matter of doubt or question [illegible] southern outrages as proper capital upon which to conduct a political campaign. In this belief he is constant, persistent, stubborn. Other party leaders are disposed to admit that the outrage cry has ceased [illegible] few intelligent men in the party who do not now understand that most of the outrages and the intimidation out of which so much political capital has been made have been either wholly inventions or have been brought about by the misdeeds of members of Senator Morton's party. Not only this the people have voted on it and have said with great deliberation and emphasis that they are no longer to be played upon by old women's tales. They said it when they elected this Democratic Congress at the end of a campaign in which outrages figured as the chief argument for the administration party. Sagacious politicians who appreciate the logic of events took the verdict as conclusive and shrewdly said, "That's done with, we must find something else now with which to fire the popular heart." Mr Morton kept and keeps right on as one who mumbles about a ghost whose shirt has been torn off and which has turned out to be John the [illegible].

Mississippi was carried at the last election by Democrats. He has counted up the black voters in the State who ought to have voted the Republican ticket and he finds there are enough to have carried the State. He has anonymous letters and letters not anonymous that would carry much more weight if they were [illegible] and he has made up his mind that the State was carried by fraud intimidation and [illegible]. This he says must be investigated. Never mind about questions of finance and the currency; never mind about South Carolina plundered and oppressed or about extravagant expenditures or about putting an end to frauds upon the government or about anything else. There is reason to suspect that some of the black men of Mississippi who wanted to or ought to have wanted to or whom at any rate he wanted to have vote the Republican ticket didn't do it: stop everything and find out about it. Not that good government is placed in jeopardy by the failure of these men to put something they could not read into the ballot box but the supremacy of Morton's party is endangered and it is necessary to make the people of the North believe that the Southern whites are not to be trusted. Does Mr Morton hope to carry a Presidential election upon such capital? It is not possible. And yet the Senator clings to it as though it was the party's last hope. How strangely this persistent Indiana statesman is like the tailor's wife in the old story who having been pushed overboard by her husband for twitting him with his occupation repeated her exasperating epithets each time she came to the surface till the last time as she was sinking she stubbornly raised her hands over her head and crossing her fingers gave him the sign of the shears as she passed out of sight. Mr Morton's party has cried "outrages" till the people have pushed it overboard. It has sunk once and seems going down again. Mr Morton's hands are over his head making the sign of the shears. And they said of the tailor's wife she was plucky. So she was. We may say the same of Mr Morton. And nothing beside.

A SOUTHERN WAR SECRET REVEALED.—Hon Alexander H H Stuart and Capt John N Opie are rival candidates for a seat in the Legislature of Virginia, and made speeches at a political meeting held in Staunton a few days since. A correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says that among some personal reminiscences related by Mr Stuart in his speech was one connected with the peace negotiations of the late Confederacy that has never been made public. He read a note from Hon Judah P Benjamin dated March 25 1864 asking him to come to Richmond for an interview with President Davis on business the subject of which was too important to be committed to paper. He went and was informed by President Davis that the Confederate Congress had voted a secret service fund of $3,000,000 to be used in creating a peace sentiment at the North. After looking over the whole country the President had selected Mr Stuart as the man for the mission. He was to sail for Nassau and thence for Halifax and there from the border of Canada could operate on prominent men. The fund of $3,000,000 was to be at his absolute disposal and he was not to be required to furnish vouchers for its disbursement. Mr Stuart declined the tender and C C Clay of Alabama and two other gentlemen were appointed. The Greeley correspondence and the "To whom it may concern" of President Lincoln followed this mission.

BOOTS AND THE HEALTH OF SOLDIERS.—Those admirers of the Germans who, since the successes achieved by the Prussians in 1870-71 would have us introduce into our army everything Prussian, even to the pickelhaube and long boots will do well, the English Broad Arrow says, to examine the medical statistics recently published relative to the late war. From these tables, prepared with that painstaking and laborious care which is so marked a trait in the German character, we learn that no less than nearly 40,000 men were placed upon the sick list during the campaign suffering from injuries caused by the long boots worn by the infantry and that in several cases the lacerations were of so serious a nature that tetanus terminating in death supervened. Undoubtedly the regulation boot at present issued to our infantry is by no means a perfect clothing for the foot and we hope ere long to see an improved pattern introduced but still it must be admitted that taking it all in all it is a much more serviceable article than either the long boot of the German or the shoe of the French soldier. The former is made to fit over the instep can with difficulty be taken off when wet, for when the feet are swollen with much marching. If made loose to facilitate putting on and off chafes the heel which has too much play while the latter will not keep out mud or dust.

AN OLD MAN'S PERILOUS RIDE.—The Lewiston (Me) Journal relates the following: Recently as the train from Portland for Lewiston was passing through Westbrook the engineer discovered some object far ahead on the track. His first thought was it must be a hand car. He at once whistled down brakes and the train brailed up as quickly as possible and just before reaching the obstruction which, in the dim twilight could not be definitely defined. As soon as the train stopped, the train hands ran ahead to see what was the trouble, when they discovered an old man 70 or 80 years of age sitting in a wagon on the railroad track trying ineffectually to jog up his horse which had got tangled up in a culvert and could not budge an inch. It is needless to say the old man was very drunk, and having mistaken the railroad for the highway had reigned his horse upon the railroad track over which he had driven half a mile until he had got stuck in the culvert. "Heigho, old fellow" says the fireman "you came mighty near getting punched, did yer know it?" The old toper roused up and winked lazily but finally hiccupped "I'se much obleeged to yer,"—only that and nothing more. The hands helped the team out of its predicament, and the train moved on.

FOR THE CENTENNIAL.—The steamer California brought, on her last trip from Alaska several packages of Indian curiosities among which is a carved column of cedar thirty feet long made by an Indian at Kara Bay on Prince of Wales archipelago Alaska Territory by order of Commissioner J G Swan. The figures on the column represent bears, beavers, otters frogs young Indians and eagles. They are the totems or family names of the occupants of the house of the chief who carved them and are simply heraldic devices. Commissioner Swan has three of these columns in Victoria and more expected from British Columbia. The Judge informs us that he has received instructions from Washington not to forward the large canoe or any large packages until after March 1876 at which time the government building will be ready to receive them. The Department of the Interior also informs the commissioner that a further sum of $7,000 has been placed at his disposal to make further and extensive purchases of articles illustrative of Indian life on the Northwest coast.—Port Townsend [illegible]

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875 fully endorsing it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day. Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply the dryers at a cost of from $[illegible] to $1000 according to capacity. Warranted to dry from 8 to [illegible] bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel. These machines being a cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines. I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor. I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle paring soft as well as hard. It does its work well with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner, and at a great saving in quantity of fruit.

FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIALS.

EAST PORTLAND Jan 4th 1876

MR W S PLUMMER—Dear Sir: As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can. Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did from the start that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet introduced into this country. The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour. The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any though perhaps not as much bleached as the Alden Fruit and we are satisfied that we can produce Dried Fruit at less expense than the Alden. The stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting last Saturday by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $[illegible] twelve thousand dollars for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the present one and making other improvements for next season. We will further say that we believe that by an improvement made by the patentee in the Heater and Fan that there will be an increase of capacity and a saving of Fuel.

H HANSON President
J S NEWELL Secretary and Superintendent

EAST PORTLAND Dec 13 1875

MR PLUMMER—Dear Sir: I have been watching both the Alden and your Fruit Dryers the past season so as to determine which was the best Machine for drying Prunes. I visited the Alden Dryer at Oregon City and examined the Prunes dried on that Machine and I have also examined several lots dried on your Machine at East Portland and my opinion is that your Dryer is far the best Machine for drying Prunes. My reasons are these: Your Machine dries them without bursting or cracking while I noticed that a great deal of the fruit dried on the Alden Machine was bursted open and after a Prune is burst in drying, it is worthless for market as a Prune. [illegible] and your Machine for drying Prunes or anything else. Yours truly,

WEDNESDAY MORNING JAN 19 1876

CITY.

Y M C A.—As announced in their circulars, Dr Watkins delivered a lecture at the rooms of this association the first of a series of six to be given for the benefit of the organization The price of admission is nominal and from the names of the gentlemen who are advertised to deliver subsequent lectures their known ability and the entertainment and information derived from the lecture delivered last evening we can promise full compensation to all who may attend The exercises of the evening commenced with a song by Miss Stearns assisted by Miss Simpson with an accompaniment on the organ—softly rendered. Gen Howard introduced the lecturer and the subject "Alcoholism" Dr Watkins then entered upon his subject and treated it from a medical view He described the organization of human blood Next he gave a short statement of the effect of alcohol in the disorganization of its cellular tissues, then its effect through its action on the blood upon the liver the heart the lungs and finally the brain This was intelligibly illustrated by diagrams exhibited by the Doctor and distributed among the audience and photographs, as the lecturer suggested kindly furnished by Mr Joseph Buchtel The Doctor closed his very interesting lecture with an appeal to young men to avoid the inevitable results of indulgence in strong drink —as inevitable as the laws of gravitation To young men he tendered the promise that abstinence was a cure to those who were "chronic" in the evil habit of strong drink that an avoidance of the temptation was a relief. The Doctor closed his lecture with a vivid picture of the sufferings of one affected with the inevitable results of continued indulgence (unless Death happily intervened) —Delirium tremens The exercises were closed by a feeling appeal by Gen Howard to the young men of this community, to profit by the Doctor's lecture and by a song by Miss Cooper, from Kansas This young Miss acquitted herself handsomely The burden of the song was "Say No" We trust the fair young songstress will not cherish a negative response to every proposition that may be made. The large room was well filled by an attentive and appreciative audience

SEVERELY INJURED.—A few evenings since Mr Jacob Keil of the firm of Keil & Wagner of this city, was thrown from an express wagon and sustained severe injuries He was driving up Fourth street about 7 o clock and in the darkness collided with a dray, at the intersection of B street. Both vehicles were moving toward each other at a very rapid pace, and before the drivers were aware of the fact, they were into each other The express wagon being much lighter than the dray was the greatest sufferer Mr Keil was hurled violently to the pavement, had his collar bone fractured from the shock, and was otherwise injured. It will be some days before Mr K will be able to resume his business

UPPER COLUMBIA IMPROVEMENTS.—Col Wilson received a dispatch yesterday from Umatilla in relation to the improvement of the channel of the Upper Columbia. The telegram stated that it was expected to complete the work at Homely Rapids yesterday, (Tuesday), and it was the purpose of the contractors Messrs Stone & Grant—to move the barges down to Umatilla Rapids and commence operations at that point as soon as practicable. It was the original intention of the contractors to move up to Owyhee and Rock Creek, where some obstructions are to be removed, when operations were completed at Homely Rapids, but the high stage of water prevented

PRISONER ESCAPED.

Considerable excitement was created in Astoria Monday night, by the escape of a prisoner who had lately been arrested on a charge of horsestealing. The officers have been in pursuit of him for some months and had just secured their man and were conveying him to Nevada, via San Francisco per steamer Oriflamme While the steamer was laying at the dock weatherbound, the officers took the man on shore with them and while they were deeply interested in a game of cards the man quietly walked out and off The porter of the Emma Hayward Mr Geo Cruikshank a most amiable and trustworthy gentleman standing in a quiet nook of the wharf about 9 o clock was suddenly pounced upon by the officers and taken on board the steamer under the impression that he was the fugitive but as he did not answer the description we call well to [illegible]

MURDEROUS, UNPROVOKED ASSAULT.

A CHINAMAN ATTEMPTS TO MURDER A WHITE WOMAN WITH A KNIFE—STABS HER SEVERAL TIMES—JUMPS INTO THE RIVER TO ESCAPE AND IS DROWNED.

On Monday the 17th inst a Chinaman in the employ of Sam Oliver who has a fishery on Snag Island a few miles above Tongue Point on the Columbia river, in the most unexpected manner attempted to murder Mrs Oliver the wife of his employer. Sam is at present residing near Pillow Rock a short distance below Brookfield Washington Territory engaged in making fishing nets On Monday shortly after dinner time Oliver and another man were engaged in spinning twine Oliver's station being a considerable distance up a steep side hill overlooking his house in which he had left his wife and the Chinaman From this position Oliver saw his wife come rushing from the door of their residence wildly throwing her arms over her head her face and hands covered with blood Dropping everything he was at her side in a few seconds In answer to his inquiry, "What is the matter?" the poor woman replied "The Chinaman has murdered me" Sam and the man working with him immediately started for the Chinaman When they sighted him he was making tracks for the river, and seeing his pursuers approaching he hastened his steps Reaching the bank he ran along a log lying partially on the beach and partly in the water, and plunged into the river whether to endeavor to escape or to end his miserable existence heaven only knows He swam out into the strong current and soon sank in sight of his pursuers to rise no more The steamer Emma Hayward happening along soon after Oliver had his wife conveyed aboard and took her down to Astoria for surgical treatment Her wounds are very severe, yet not necessarily fatal Mrs Oliver states that the Chinaman passed her in the house and she pleasantly remarked to him something concerning the weather when, to her surprise and consternation he suddenly drew a large knife and said "I will kill you now" striking her at the same time on the head with the knife After that she remembers she struggled with and rushed past him gaining the outside of the door, where her husband saw her Mrs Oliver received four severe cuts on the head, and the index finger is almost severed from her right hand, which it is natural to suppose she raised to protect her head She is now lying at the Occidental Hotel attended by Dr Dodd and there are strong hopes entertained that she will recover

THE WALLOWA VALLEY SCARE.

The Walla Walla Statesman of the 15th inst says "Last Tuesday the troops composed of companies H and L, 1st U S Cavalry under command of Major Trimble returned to Fort Walla Walla from their trip across the mountains, where they went in accordance with instructions received from head quarters to subdue a reported insurrection among the Nez Perce Indians in Wallowa valley The troops left their post January 1st and were preceded by their commanding officer a few days, who went ahead to investigate the matter We have endeavored to obtain as accurate information as possible in regard to the scare and all we can learn leads us to believe the whole report to be a grand humbug In the first place the difficulty with the Indians—slight as it was—did not occur in the Wallowa valley as reported, but in the valley of the Nimnah forty-five miles east of the upper Wallowa valley In the second place the affair was greatly exaggerated The Indians drove no cattle into the mountains, nor did they express the least desire to have war no settlers were banded together for self-defense, in fact only three white men were concerned in the affair The "insurrection" was nothing more than an expostulation on the part of the Indians against the whites monopolizing all the good bottom grazing While they believe the valley should be exclusively theirs they expressed perfect willingness to allow the cattle of the whites to remain All they asked was fair dealing The whole thing reminds us of one Æsop's fables where a whole country was thrown into consternation by the roaring and groaning of a mountain the phenomenon explaining itself by the exit of a mouse from a crevice in its side

SCIENTIFIC LECTURES.—The subjects of the scientific lectures that Dr Harvey has been requested to deliver will be, on the evolution of the earth the evolution of life, the glacial epoch the correlation of the forces the heavenly bodies and dietetics and hygiene The series on evolution will go to show that the universe and man are controlled by law and not by caprice or variable will; that everything flows in a regular train of cause and effect and that a perfect knowledge of the laws of nature would enable the possessor of it to determine events before they came to pass though it is not supposed that any man can possess this knowledge A rational discussion of these topics we should think could hardly fail to be interesting, and we have no doubt there will be a large turn out to hear the lectures The first on the Evolution of the Earth will take place on Friday evening next the 21st instant Tickets to be had at J K Gill's book store Admission 25 cents

RICH QUARTZ LODE.

Mr F R Scott formerly of Portland but now a resident of Southern Oregon writes as follows to a well known gentleman of this city

I am now engaged in the quartz business. Enclosed I send you a small specimen of the rock to show you what I have got This covered the lead I last spring and have been all summer and fall making preparations to operate it The lead is located in Josephine county on Rogue river about 50 miles below Jacksonville five miles from the mouth of Galice creek. I found the lode near the bank of the river and it crops out on both sides of the stream It is in a belt of chalky slate and appears to average about three feet as deep as we have sunk the shaft The lead appears to run out level with the river I don't know whether it rises in the hill or not We are not more than ten feet down on it yet as the high water has bothered us this winter I came up about a month ago If the lead holds out as it appears to we have the richest thing ever struck in Southern Oregon The rock assays from $600 to $1 100 per ton We have about 14 or 15 tons out and what I send you I picked up from the dump as I was ready to start The lode appears to be well defined and is about 2 000 feet below the general surface of the country in that vicinity

We are now engaged in running an open cut back to the bluff about 100 feet perhaps As soon as we do that we will know better what is its extent The lode crops out rich on the opposite side of the river, some four hundred feet from where I am at work I have had to make a pack trail about a mile over very steep sideling and rocky ground We intend to put up a mill in the spring if we have luck We have already on the ground 18 inch flange gudgeons to build an overshot wheel 28 feet in diameter We have water to run an overshot wheel right at the lead, so we will not have to haul our quartz.

SWIMMING THE MISSOURI.

HOW AN EARLY SETTLER ATTENDED A WEDDING—A SCRAP OF UNWRITTEN HISTORY

The early history of Cooper county is full of history and romance About the year 1820 there were but few families living on the south side of the river The most prominent were by the name of Cole, who had a fort about two miles below Boonville, into which they retreated when in danger from Indians Such a thing as a wedding was a rare occurrence as the population was very scattered and it was inconvenient to assemble as people lived so far from each other About this time the Cole family was invited to attend a wedding in Cooper's Bottom over the river in Howard county and about eight miles off The elder Cole his wife and all of the children except a boy named Sam about sixteen years old got ready to attend the wedding and for that purpose all the clothes belonging to the family were brought into requisition They started early in the evening as they had to travel a considerable distance and cross the Missouri river and left Sam by himself, at home Toward evening he commenced to muse on the subject of the wedding and his curiosity became intensely excited to witness the event But there was no horse to ride the river was to cross, and it was too late to cross by the ferry Besides all the clothes were gone (it was in the summer time) and Sam's only garment was a tow shirt Fortunately just as the sun was going down Sam espied his father's pet bull slowly making his way up to the fort, and an idea occurred to him, here was way and to get to the wedding He immediately improvised a bridle of hickory bark put it on the bull, mounted him and started just as he was He got to the river just at dusk, went about three hundred yards above the ferry landing, and boldly urged his trusty steed into the foaming current of the Missouri river He landed on the other side at the usual place, safe and sound and ascended the bank and took up his line of march to the wedding got into the cabin in time anchored the bull opposite the open door where he could see laid down on the back of his steed and gazed for the first time on a wedding He laid on his bull, where he could see all that was going on and not be seen himself till late in the evening, when as he declined to go into the company he was stowed away out of sight till morning when he returned, with the rest of the family home

The hero of this incident is still living in this county enjoying a green old age and a reputation surpassed by none of the many prosperous farmers of this county and no man stands higher in the estimation of his fellow citizens than Captain Sam Cole —Boonville Advertiser

DEATH OF A NOTED OARSMAN.—Pittsburgh Jan 10—James Hammill, the famous oarsman of this city died this morning of congestion of the brain His first rowing race was won by defeating Wolfe of Cincinnati on the Upper Monongahela course, in 1859 Several local contests resulted largely in his favor in the three succeeding years In 1862 he won a handsome victory in the Boston regatta, and in September of the same year he defeated Josh Ward on the Schuylkill at Philadelphia, winning the championship of America The year following Ward defeated him at Poughkeepsie but he was victorious in September of the same year over Ward at the same place, this being his greatest contest In 1864 he was one of the Pittsburgh crew that defeated the New York crew in a regatta on the lower Monongahela In 1865 Hammill was defeated by Henry Kelly on the Thames when he was charged with selling the race Two years later he rowed with Walter Brown, but no decision was rendered, as both claimed a foul In 1868 he rowed with Henry Coulter on the Schuylkill and won by the decision of the referee on a claim of foul In 1869 Coulter defeated him on the upper Monongahela Since then he has been a member of the Fire Department, and beyond the training of crews has not participated in aquatics He could never swim a stroke He was 38 years of age

ONLY THE SUNNY HOURS

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN

Suggested by the lines upon a sundial Horas non numero nisi serenas

Only the sunny hours
Are numbered here—
No Winter time that lowers,
No twilight drear.
But from a golden sky
When sunbeams fall,
Though the bright moments fly,
They're counted all.

My heart its transient woe
Remembers not;
The ills of long ago
Are half forgot.
But Childhood's round of bliss,
Youth's tender thrill,
Hope's whisper, Love's first kiss—
They haunt me still.

Sorrows are everywhere,
Joys—all too few!
Have we not had our share
Of pleasure too?
No Past the glad heart cowers
In memory dark—
Only the sunny hours
The dial mark.

—Scribner's Monthly

HOW THEY ENTERTAIN THE PRINCE OF WALES IN INDIA.

Now the gateways have been barred with massive beams. The police peons after clearing the arena are scuttling swiftly with many demonstrations of terror into the man holes. The chains are loosed from the legs of the two 'fighting elephants,' and these slowly advance to meet each other, goaded by men with javelins, enticed by picadors dangling red scarfs before each. Some of the latter appear recklessly bold, and run, or seem to run, narrow escapes, as the huge beast, with raised trunk comes charging at them. Now the two elephants closely confront each other, and their tusks clash together with a mighty bicker. Their trunks interlace into a twisted knot, their loins strain as they push against each other for the mastery their flanks heave, and the muscles stand out under the thick hides. Weight tells at first, and the bigger lighter colored brute bears back the less massive darker hued elephant but the smaller one his greater gameness and constantly confronts his weightier antagonist. The latter growls 'cuts it' and, turning his pachydermatous back round seems in a surprised fashion to bid his opponent take his change out of that. The combat now degenerates into a farce the smaller animal keeps butting fitfully into the great rump of the other who sluggishly declines the fray and sustains phlegmatically a good deal of punching against the barricade and walls from the blunt tusks of the animal which for form's sake must, I suppose, be called his antagonist. It is obvious that the fight is a sham and so the fuse-bearers advance and flare up. The elephants clearly understand and act with alacrity on this signal that they need show to fight no more. The big fellow stands fast among the smoke, for he is already at his own end of the arena, the smaller chap scuttles off in ludicrously clumsy haste to his own corner. Again, however, they are induced to renew the semblance of a struggle, and there is some aimless butting with fore heads, clashing of tusks, and intertwining of trunks. But it is so evident that the brutes understand each other that in the language of the P R, the fight is a "cross," that the farce grows tedious, and is ended by the attachment first of clamps and then of ropes round the hind legs of the lazy combatants the blazing and smoke of the fuses, and the final tying up of the unscathed impostors.

These removed a third elephant, a huge dun hided rogue, is brought in at one portal, while through the other there caracoles gaily a smart horseman, on a handsome gray horse powerfully bitted, and well back on his haunches. The horseman rides very short, and the style of equitation reminds one forcibly of the French manege, although his seat is freer and suppler than obtains there. He, circling and capering approaches the elephant which after facing him for a time, makes a sudden rush and his trunk is on the horse's croup and all but clutches the rider before the speed of the Arab tells and carries horse and man out of reach. Quick as lightning the horseman is round again, capering teasingly around the elephant whose rushes in quick succession, and what certainly seems a succession of hair breadth escapes on the part of the rider keep on the strain the interest of the spectators. The courage of both rider and horse are undeniable, the former is a finished horseman both as to hand and to seat, and the latter obeys with beautiful alacrity of dexterity the slightest hint from wrist or leg. Over and over again the rider's life seems not worth a second's purchase, as the elephant's trunk brushes his shoulder but supple dexterity pulls him through and the foiled elephant at length lapses into sullen apathy

Way there for the rhinoceros his thick hide lying on his back in flaccid folds—that hide of which it is written that 'the sword of him that layeth at it cannot hold the spear, the dart nor the habergeon.' The patriarch asks, 'Canst thou bind the unicorn with his band in the furrow?' 'Canst thou put a hook in to his nose? or bore his jaws through with a thorn?' A modern Job visiting Baroda could scarcely venture to ask these questions as illustrations of impossibilities, for the rhinoceros as we see him brought into the arena here, has a great bit in the mouth of him and massive chains round his throat and legs. The huge ugly monster comes forward hobbling and as he comes he routs along the ground with that vicious solitary horn on his snout. Another rhinoceros follows, scarcely so big, but rather uglier, moving with a curious high action and routing with a longer horn. The two are loosened, save for the chain hobbles on their forelegs, and they sluggishly approach each other and begin to butt and bore at each other with their horns. There is much fierce grunting and great straining. Neither has much stomach for the fray and the short struggle ends in the incontinent and cowardly bolting of the larger short horned brute, with clumsy bounds and frisks obvious 'funk' and profuse gruntings. A second time the two are brought to the scratch, a second time does the impostor shun the prolongation of the duel. Water is thrown on the thick hides of the brutes apparently to encourage them to fight but with the grotesque result that both clumsily but precipitately bolt in opposite directions. The pigs won't fight, and no amount of jobbing with spears will make them take kindly to the fray. After much grotesque floundering all about the arena they are ordered off in disgrace.

Buffaloes succeed behemoth genuine wild buffaloes of the swampy jungle—brutes that among their native bulrushes will fearlessly face the tiger himself. One is black and sleek, the other dun and rough. There is no question about their ardor for the battle, with straining sinew they rush to the encounter. At the first crash the dun loses a horn close to the scalp. The agony must be horrible the blood streams from the raw pith on to the sand but the fighting demon is rampant in the brute and he battles madly on. But he cannot sustain the unequal contest long and it is a relief from the sickening spectacle when he wheels and, dashing blindly against the barricade half staggers half crouches under it and his lost sight of as mad with pain and terror he rushes out into the [illegible] the scared populace flying wildly from his infuriated track. A fresh pair take the field and rush together head against head with a terrific [illegible]. They lock together they struggle and strain and in a whirlwind of sand [illegible] at length with a mighty heave the smaller one [illegible] the latter clean on to his back and strives hard to rip open with his horn the stomach of his prostrate antagonist. But that they are parted straining fiercely at each other as they are dragged away this struggle would have been unto the death. A series of combats between rams ensue. These dash furiously against each other—forehead clashing on forehead—till the arena rings again with the sound of the impacts. The spectacle which was perhaps unduly prolonged and which was barbarous in so far as the combats were serious and somewhat childish as well as barbarous in so far as they were make believe concluded with a promenade of black bucks and nilghaies harnessed into cars, and a trumpery show of parrots and cockatoos displayed in cages by bearers ranged in a semicircle in front of the royal balcony.

It is claimed that there is no doubt this family day that will bring money than ever before. Last year was a good year for the crops of nearly all kinds and hitherto the export business has been curtailed so that a very large surplus is yet held in all sections of the State. This is not only true of Oregon but also of the Eastern States. Then since the panic of 1873 the people have studied the best in the [illegible] retrenchment have curtailed their living expenses and have proven through industry and economy they can live even in these days of depression. An exchange from the Atlantic coast says: During the past eighteen months the consuming portion of the people have been living from hand to mouth and endeavoring to extricate themselves from their difficulties. Yet notwithstanding that through these months caution and economy have been uppermost in the minds of the best business men there is still a continuance of the old cry of hard times such a cry has never been heard before. Everybody knows that the American people as a class are extravagant and when the panic of 1873 overtook them, it caught them in the most extravagant period of their existence. One of the great causes of the depression is alleged to be illegitimate speculation and if instead of this sort of business men would only confine themselves to that which when they commenced they intended to do and stick to legitimate business there would be more made and fewer offers to compromise at 50 per cent than we have had during the past few months. Gambling in business is a ruinous thing and when it is done with the money which should go to pay honest indebtedness it is a crime, yet the business world does not recognize it as such for the reason that all seem prone to do the same thing when they see fit

A Home Enterprise.

Almost every steamer and sail vessel arriving in our port from San Francisco brings more or less iron ware of various descriptions and the money annually sent out of the State for stoves and goods of that character amounts to many thousands of dollars. The workmen in the business of making these articles are kept from coming to our State because there are no factories here and Oregon is thus retarded in the growth of both her population and wealth by the want of more extended operations in this single direction. A proposition is now on foot in which some prominent business men are taking an interest which if successfully carried out, will result in the establishment in this city of a stove and hollow ware foundry by parties who it is claimed are thoroughly skilled in the business and able to compete with the manufactories of the East in the quality of their wares. Mr Patterson & Son, of Gervais have for several months been carrying on the business there on a small scale and have met with good success but the sphere of their operations is too limited and they propose to enlarge it by removing to Portland if sufficient inducement is offered either in the way of subscriptions or guaranteed patronage, and we commend their proposition which will probably soon be made in a more tangible shape to the business men and capitalists. Every factory or other establishment which furnishes employment to those seeking it, or converts the raw materials so abundantly supplied in our State into articles of use and value, is entitled to encouragement as a promoter of the prosperity of the people and the increase of the general wealth of the community

An Uncertain Market.

The telegraphic reports from Europe which we published this morning give only a faint hope of any early advance in the price of breadstuffs but yet it will be seen that the authority then for believing in a rise to come before harvest is not entirely wanting. At present there is probably 50,000 tons surplus in our State in first hands and unless the market improves no small proportion of this will be carried over to next harvest. Farmers who were compelled to sell in order to meet their liabilities and expenses of production, have mostly sold already and much of that yet held is in the hands of those who are able to carry it over. Whether the policy of holding this present through the year generally proves profitable is best known to those who have tried it but that it may prove otherwise when the quantity held is great there can be no doubt as we very soon have more tonnage in our State than will carry off the average product of any particular year and it is not to be denied that the supply or lack of supply of tonnage in our market has a material influence on the price of grain. The rate of freights has perhaps a greater effect on this than any other market because of our distance from the centers of demand, and circumstances can easily be imagined under which it would be unprofitable to ship our surplus to Europe except at a loss to the producer. Hence it might be the part of wisdom in our farmers to thoroughly investigate the question whether other branches of agriculture that might yield quite as ample and sure returns as wheat are not somewhat neglected for the production of large quantities of this cereal although this must continue to be the staple export commodity of the State
